

ADAM PALMER

CCIM, SIOR

Managing Principal

ABOUT

Adam's early professional experience began in software development, where he honed his skills in software engineering for Lucent Technologies and Sprint while later managing government software projects. In the early 2000s, Adam made a career change and shifted his focus to the inspiring realm of Commercial Real Estate. Since then, Adam has excelled in serving a diverse range of clients, including small local businesses, institutional investors, and Fortune 500 companies. Regardless of their size or stature, Adam treats each client with utmost care and dedication, ensuring they receive personalized attention and exceptional service.

His commitment to excellence has earned him widespread recognition as a leader within the industry and the community. Adam's exceptional performance has been acknowledged by CoStar®, which has honored him as a 20-time "Power Broker" award winner. His production levels consistently rank among the best in the State of Florida and globally, as evident by being less than dual specialist SIORs worldwide for his transactional volume in Office and Industrial properties.

Adam's exceptional achievements and leadership extend beyond his professional success. He currently serves as First Vice President of the CCIM Institute and has served as President of the Florida CCIM Chapter. Showcasing his dedication to advancing the industry, Adam has also made significant contributions to other organizations, including serving as an Executive Committee Board Member for Florida Realtors representing its 238,000 members, as an At-Large Member for the Horizon Council, and also serving as President of Commercial Investment Professionals.

Adam's expertise is widely recognized, and he frequently contributes as an Expert Witness in the courts and as a speaker for various industry events, business functions, and universities. His insights have garnered attention from national media outlets such as FOX, CBS, NBC, ABC, CNN, Bloomberg, Wall Street Journal, and others.

Outside of his professional endeavors, Adam finds joy in spending quality time with his wife, Jennifer, and their children, Avery and Alex along with providing volunteer work for various philanthropic and charitable efforts.
